FASO is thrilled to support Annapolis Symphony Orchestra and Academy through this charitable effort, and has pledged to use the funds from the Rotary BT&D for programs targeted specifically to area children. The Annapolis Symphony Academy provides exceptional music education and performance opportunities to 170 students from preschool through high school. Many children in the Academy come from neighborhoods that lack resources, including access to formalized music education. Approximately 50% of Academy students receive need-based scholarship support, reflecting the ASO's commitment to removing financial barriers to participating in classical music.
